Service Elevens Not to Meet at Polo Grounds for the First Time Since 1914

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 24.—The football game this year between the elevens of the Military and Naval academies will be played on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, according to an official announcement issued to-day. The fact that the seating accommodations of that field will be cularged to about 60,000 made practicable the playing of the big service game there. The game will be played on November 25.

played on November 25.

Tranklin Field was the scene of just half of the twenty-four service games which siready have been played, the last one taking place there in 1914. Since then all the games have been at the Felo Grounds, New York City. Philadielphia has reveral advantages from the Nawy standpoint. The trip is shorter from Annapolis, and there is a considerable saving in railroad fare to the midshipmen and others.

The existing agreement between the efficials of the two schools covered five years, and ends with the next game. However, it is likely to be renewed on the same terms. Under it the institutions alternate in a choice of the battle-ground, though it must not be north of New York City or south of Philadelphia. The Navy had the right of choice for this year and selected Philadelphia. There also was some discussion as to the date of the game. The date fixed by the agreement was November 25 the content.

Harvard Officials Interested

CAMBRIDGE, Mass, Jan. 24. The nouncement from Annapolis to-day at the Army and Navy would meet football next fall on November 25, as of interest to Harvard graduate bletic efficials because the annual de-liarvard football classic also is be held that day. In recent years a Army-Nawy game has been held that eak after that between the Grimson of Bine.
